“If you think you have a reason that’s holding you back – if you’re an engineer, or you’ve never traveled overseas before, or you’re on financial aid – think again. At Duke, we make sure that global opportunities are open to everyone. Both federal and institutional financial aid is fully portable – it goes wherever you go.”

STUDY AWAY AS EARLY AS THE SUMMER AFTER YOUR FIRST YEAR.

Earn Course Credit Towards Graduation, All Around the World

Duke University is committed to providing an undergraduate education with a truly global perspective. We believe that the best possible study away experience offers students high caliber academics, a strong support system, and the chance to integrate intellectual inquiry into a mosaic of cultural and personal experiences.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Make the Most of Your Time at Duke

Your most precious resource at Duke may very well be your time. Whatever your future holds, the time you invest in study away will yield undeniable assets for achieving your goals.

Find Out More About Who You Are

Reaching outside your comfort zone is a powerful way to increase self-awareness, build character, reexamine your place in the world, and define what's important to you.

Experience Authentic Intercultural Immersion

When you study at the source, in context and in real time, with access to resources indigenous to the host location, you'll learn at an unmatched intensity.

11 TIMES YOU COULD STUDY AWAY

There are 11 terms in a typical four-year undergraduate career in which you could plan to study away: Six summer sessions and five semester terms.

DUKE-ADMINISTERED PROGRAMS (DUKE-INS)

- Earn regular Duke credits and grades in most cases (transfer credit in some)
- Administered by Duke (in full or in part)
- Duke faculty directly involved

148

DUKE-APPROVED PROGRAMS

- Earn transfer credit
- Sponsored by other U.S./foreign universities and providers
- Reviewed and approved by a committee of Duke faculty and staff

CREDITS IN A WIDE RANGE OF SUBJECTS

You don't have to be a foreign language major/minor – or even have knowledge of a foreign language – to study away. In fact, many programs are taught in English and offer credits in a variety of subjects like economics, public policy, biology, and computer science, just to name a few.

USE YOUR FINANCIAL AID OR SCHOLARSHIP TO STUDY AWAY.

Don't let cost deter you.

Duke has established robust financial aid programs to support students' global academic endeavors. Duke financial aid, as well as federal financial aid, can be used to study away.

Scholarship funding is also an option. Consider applying to a scholarship awarded uniquely to study away participants; or inquire about using funds from your general scholarship to pursue a study away program.

38%

of students who studied abroad in 2014-2015 were on financial aid.

COST STRUCTURES

	Duke-In Programs	Duke-Approved Programs
Tuition + Fees	Standard Duke tuition plus program fee	Tuition and fees of host institution
Other Fees	Housing fee for some domestic programs	Duke study abroad fee (2016-17 fee: $4,580 per semester)
Additional Expenses	Varies by program. Research what's included in the program fee and what you'll have to budget to pay on your own. Some common additional expenses are: airfare, visa/residency permit, books, mobile phone, public transportation, laundry, weekend meals, personal travel outside the program itinerary, etc.

FINANCIAL AID

Consult financialaid.duke.edu or call (919) 684-6225 for more information. Non-Duke students should consult their home institution regarding financial aid.

	Duke-In Programs	Duke-Approved Programs
Financial Aid for Semester Programs*	Your family contribution will remain the same as a semester on campus, even if the budgeted cost of your program is more expensive.	Your family contribution will remain the same, provided the cost of the program doesn't exceed the cost of a semester at Duke.
Financial Aid for Summer Programs*	You may receive financial aid for up to two Duke-In summer programs (and/or summer sessions in Durham).	No institutional aid provided for non-Duke summer programs.

*Available to undergraduate Duke students already receiving federal or institutional aid for study on the Durham campus. Eligibility varies per cost of program and family contribution.

DUKE-IN PROGRAMS DOMESTIC

At Duke, global doesn't just mean abroad

In addition to study abroad programs, the Global Education Office for Undergraduates administers a host of credit-bearing study away programs based in iconic locations around the United States. These innovative and academically stimulating theme-based programs offer a chance to extend your Duke experience to major US hubs for finance, entrepreneurship, arts and entertainment, biology, and public policy.

Access to Industry Insiders

“My greatest takeaway from the program was the numerous opportunities to have one-on-one conversations with alumni. It was invaluable for me to learn about the different careers on Wall Street, directly from people currently working in finance jobs. I also was very surprised at how extensive the Duke network is in New York City and the willingness of alumni to help students interested in finance, like myself.”

–Gina Rhee
Duke in New York: Financial Markets & Institutions

Experiences That Go Beyond Tourism

“During my study away experience, I interned at the production company Moxie Pictures, while simultaneously filming my own short videos. As I explored the city with my camera, I fell in love with it ... I no longer felt like a tourist, but an artist in the city.”

–Taylor Peterson, Duke in New York Arts & Media

STUDY AWAY AND BUILD YOUR NETWORK AROUND THE WORLD.

Position yourself to achieve your goals.

The connections you make with other people during a study away program can shape the path of your future in surprising ways. Whether it be members of your cohort from Duke or other universities, students at a foreign university, your host family, faculty members, internship supervisors, guest speakers, or even Duke alumni, you'll interact with new people on a steady basis who could evolve into colleagues or mentors down the road.

INTERNSHIPS

In select cases, it is possible to complete an internship while you are doing a study away program. In addition to some internships abroad, GEO programs offer US-based internships in cities such as Washington DC, New York City, Los Angeles, and Chicago. A GEO advisor can help you find programs offering an internship component.

DUKE ALUMNI

Many program activities strategically involve Duke alumni living and working in host locations. Alumni might offer their time as a guest speaker or host for behind-the-scenes tours, or as a resource for students looking to get plugged into an area and find opportunities.

NEW CONNECTIONS

Study away is about exploring what's new and different, but it can also be a chance to bond with others around shared experiences and interests. Of all the people you'll meet on your program, you never know who might end up referring you for an internship or employment, or who might write your next letter of recommendation for a scholarship, research opportunity, or graduate program.

STORIES TO SHARE

What does a study away experience on your resumé say about you? For starters, it says you are curious, willing to try new things, and able to adapt to new situations. It also says you value intellectual pursuit. More specifically, your study away experience gives you a rich source of interesting stories that will help you naturally connect with people who also have a tie to the area where you studied.

ATTEND THE GLOBAL ED FAIR IN SEPTEMBER

Once a year, GEO hosts the Global Education Fair to give you convenient access to study away planning resources. Talk to Duke students, program faculty and staff, financial aid counselors, and academic advisors ... all in one place!

LOOK UP COURSES PRE-APPROVED FOR CREDIT

If a study away course is listed in the Course Approval Database, you can see right away which Duke course corresponds and whether you'll earn Duke credit or transfer credit for it.

Course Approval Database: courses.gloaled.duke.edu

CONSULT YOUR ACADEMIC ADVISING NETWORK

You can talk to anyone in your academic advising network about study away, but the Directors of Academic Engagement for Global and Civic Opportunities are especially knowledgeable about study away and how it might fit into your overall plan. Visit advising.duke.edu/dae for details.

MEET WITH A GEO ADVISOR

Visit globaled.duke.edu to schedule a 30-minute appointment with a GEO advisor. The session will be tailored to your specific needs, whether you need help choosing a program or you are ready to delve into specific questions.

This Is About You

When it comes to choosing a program, the array of options can be overwhelming. It might seem easier to follow friends' recommendations, but we encourage you to make study away be about your own path, putting emphasis on the program aspects that matter to you. Use the list below to evaluate your needs.

Considerations for Choosing a Program

ACADEMICS: How might study away tie into my academic interests and goals? What courses are offered? Which course credits would benefit me most?

PRE-PROFESSIONAL: Where around the world is current research or innovation happening in fields that interest me? Where could I learn from industry leaders? Where might I want to intern or work later?

TIMING: What programs are offered during the terms that work for me (summer, spring, fall, or full academic year)? Could I try a summer program first to see if I want to do a full semester later?

LANGUAGE: What is the language of instruction? If it's not my first language, what are the language requirements?

HOUSING: How much immersion with the host culture will the housing offer? Will I live with a host family? Will I live with other students?

WHY LEAVING YOUR COMFORT ZONE IS WORTH IT

“I believe that the study abroad experience is crucial to both academic and personal development in that it forces you out of your comfort zone.

Embracing a new culture, a new language, and a new way of living challenges you in ways that simply cannot be replicated in an environment that is familiar and comfortable.

I was able to improve my Spanish fluency and develop a love of Spanish history and culture. But I was also able to be challenged and sometimes even fail in new and different ways, and I was able to grow personally in my response to those obstacles.”
